Conference theme: "Crises of Meaning"

We face not only social, political, environmental, and scientific crises but also crises in how we make sense of ourselves and our world. Husserl diagnosed a general "Crisis of the European Sciences" nearly a century ago, leading us to oscillate between the extremes of positivism and relativism. We witness how this has only deepened to this day, where fundamental values like justice and truth are being emptied of meaning. The plenary speakers (and others, as far as possible) are asked to address how their research may be relevant for the theme. In this way, cognitive semiotics can hopefully make a contribution to the situation in our troubled world!

Note: Participating in the conference implies expressing support for the freedom and territorial integrity of Ukraine.

Plenary speakers:

- * Merlin Donald, Queen's University
- * Hans-Georg Moeller, University of Macau
- * Cornelia Mueller, Europa-Universität Viadrina
- * Jamin Pelkey, Toronto Metropolitan University
- * Komarine Romdenh-Romluc, University of Sheffield
- * Morten Tønnessen, University of Stavanger
